SHANGHAI, SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1864

GORDON'S Memo relative to the execution of the Wangs at Soochow, which was published in the North-China Herald of the 12th December, created, as our readers are fully aware, much excitement, and elicited numberless indignant protests against the treachery of the Futai. Passing by the abstract question of right and wrong involved; passing by in like manner the questions whether the Futai was not, according to the Chinese standard of honor, fully justified in ordering the execution of the rebel leaders, and whether Gordon had any right to make the promise which the Futai afterwards violated, it is at any rate evident that Gordon was eventually led to view the matter in a manner different from that in which it first presented itself to him. The simple fact that, without any substantial guarantee that such a contingency should not a second time occur, he again took the field, and carried out the wishes of the perfidious Futai is, in itself, sufficient to prove that a change gradually passed over the spirit of his dream. Gordon may perhaps have heard that Ching, (in spite of his assertion that "the La Wang had run away,") had in truth some reason for "looking pale," for that he had not only superintended, but had on his own responsibility ordered the execution which has heaped so much popular displeasure on the Futai. Whether this be true or not we do not venture to say, but our readers may not be aware that a short time before his death Ching informed Macartney that he and he alone had been the prime mover in the execution. He did not pretend that the Futai was ignorant of the proceeding until the entire affair was over, but he asserted definitely that it was he who gave the order in the first instance, "for," said he, "had the Wangs not been executed, the next Gazette would have contained an order for my decapitation, and possibly for the degradation and death of the Futai." Be this as it may, Gordon, having, in common with every foreigner to whom the tale was told, expressed his horror at the slaughter of the Wangs, was at length pacified, and pursued for the Futai that course of victory which we have from time to time traced in these columns, and which if it had been followed out on either of the western continents, would have rendered Gordon one of the heroes of history. It was therefore with much regret that we read in the last parliamentary blue book on China, the following passages which find a place in the Memo dated December 12th, and forwarded by Major Gordon to Major-General Brown :—

I then went to his (the Governor's) boat, and left him a note in English, informing him of what my intention had been, and also my opinion of his treachery. I regret to say that Mr. Macartney did not think fit to have this translated to him.

On the 8th December the Futai sent Mr. Macartney to persuade me that he could not have done otherwise, and I blush to think that he could have got an Englishman, late an officer in Her Majesty's army, to undertake a mission of such a nature.

Notwithstanding this burst of indignation, a few weeks sufficed to persuade Gordon to accept the representations originally made by the Futai through Macartney. We cannot see how the mere fact of Macartney being entrusted with a message intended to smooth matters gave Gordon cause to blush. But admitting this excessive sensibility to the disgrace in which an Englishman involves himself when he attempts to assist the Chinese government by his services, it is worth while to refer back to the circumstances which led to Major Gordon's blush, and to his report of the phenomenon to Major General Brown. In the passage quoted above, Gordon refers to certain "intentions" which he had entertained. These intentions as expressed by Gordon himself, resulted from the natural excitement into which the events of the few previous days had thrown him, and could not have suggested themselves except under some such extraordinary circumstances. They were, amongst other things, to attack Ching, to re-take Soochow and the other cities, to depose the Futai, and to elect five commissioners to execute the office of Governor until advices could be received from Peking. When these propositions first came to our knowledge we took the view which we have expressed above, and our readers will doubtless look at them in the same light. Indeed the absurdity of the entire thing is so evident to one who sits down calmly to consider the propositions either separately or collectively, that Gordon's penetration could not have failed to guide him to a right decision so soon as he had an opportunity of exercising his cool judgment. As to the first, we need only say that the "Ever Victorious" would have had but a sorry chance against Ching's army. As to the second, even admitting (a very rash admission, by the way) the possibility of recapturing Soochow and the other cities from the Imperialists, Gordon would by such an attempt have lowered himself from the lofty position he then and now holds, to that of an ordinary filibusterer. The third proposition lacked the important element of possibility, for it will be evident to the least informed on Chinese matters that no five men could have been found to accept the honor which Gordon would have thrust upon them. Hardly could the report of their presumption reach the throne before a swift fate would have overtaken them. An inexorable doom would have been instantly pronounced on men who dared to take from a foreigner an appointment conferred by the Emperor alone. Then again, such acts would have necessitated one of three things—either a third Chinese war, or the repudiation of Gordon's acts on the part of the English government, or a repudiation of the Futai on the part of the Chinese. The English government could never have demanded the last alternative—all principles of justice would have forbidden it. Which of the former two would therefore have been accepted? We leave our readers to judge. Either would, in our opinion, have proved most disastrous in its results. Yet it was in order to stem the tide of imprudence which was carrying Gordon headlong to these fatal rocks, that Macartney was deputed by the Futai to represent matters in a somewhat more favorable light. We may further remark that at the moment when Macartney incurred Gordon's displeasure by his attempt to prevent the dangers which the latter was creating for himself, there were present at least three other Englishmen, one a Treaty Consul, a second an officer in the English army, the third the head of a mercantile house in the settlement. We do not know what opinions were expressed by the last mentioned gentleman, but we are informed that the British officer and the Treaty Consul were unanimous in combating each hasty resolution expressed by Gordon. These gentlemen therefore share the honor of causing Gordon's blush of indignation. We consider it, however, a matter for sincere congratulation that (if Gordon's opinions still remain unaltered) he has sacrificed his private feelings, and permitted himself to perform deeds of valor for which his countrymen at least find no reason to blush.

THE long lists of departures by every steamer which leaves for Japan or the North, as well as the painful announcements of deaths, which frequently appear in our columns and in those of our local contemporaries, prove too plainly that disease is still in our midst, and that the foreign community is fully alive to the danger which surrounds it. This feeling of fear, however natural, may, nevertheless, be carried too far, and by its depressing influence on the mind, bring about the very evils against which it warns us. Indeed, knowing as we do the tendency of mental emotion of this kind, and also the incomprehensible relations which exist between the mind and the body, it is not too much to say that, in spite of climatic dangers and of the many and various elements of disease by which we are surrounded, what we have most to dread is fear itself. The temptation to the indulgence in this feeling of terror is doubtless very strong. We so frequently regret the loss of friends and acquaintances apparently struck down while in the full enjoyment of health and manly vigour, that there is some ground for the belief that Death is in truth no respecter of persons, and beats with equal foot at the gates of the careful and the negligent. But it is not so. Each instance of sudden and apparently unaccountable death has had a previous history, and in every case which came to our knowledge during the Cholera seasons which have passed over us, the immediate cause of the seizure could without difficulty be traced. There had been either intense mental anxiety, overwork, exposure to the sun, sudden transition from a heated to a cold athmosphere, insufficient clothing, the use of bad water, or some other cause equally likely to bring about the fatal consummation. We believe that the physicians now practising in Shanghai will bear us out in this assertion, and will join us in advocating the use of every precautionary measure. These measures are very simple, and involve no diminution of our daily enjoyments. Indeed, in all cases, whatever tends to enliven the mind and dispel care and anxiety is the best prophylactic against cholera. A Latin writer whose researches into the phenomena of the mind have procured for him the respect of the philosophical world, thus sums up his remarks on the depressing influence of fear:—"For whoever faints "or fears, or gives himself up to the "dominion of passion, casts away his "shield, makes a cord to bind himself, "and pulls a beam upon his own head." It may seem absurd to utter warnings against the indulgence in what after all is an involuntary emotion of the mind. But it is to be remembered that while one man opposes and eventually overcomes his emotions, another lays himself open to the advance of this peculiar mental state, and lugs to himself the terror which may at the moment be sapping the very foundations of his being. Knowing then that for those who cannot take refuge in flight, it is mere foolishness to fear what cannot be avoided, we would impress on our readers the advantages of careful attention to the state of their mental and physical constitution. As we have said above, this care does not necessarily involve anxiety; indeed anxiety is one of the very emotions against which it will defend us. The manly sports which are daily obtaining more and more favor amongst the foreign community, the cricket matches, rifle matches, boating, riding and exercise of all kinds not only expel what the old physicians would call the vicious humours of the body but enliven and strengthen the mind. It is physically impossible that a man who has made some half dozen centres, or who has come off with flying colors in a cricket score, or who has pulled or is pulling best oar in a boat, or is making a splendid course across country can find time to think of cholera, or allow his mind to rest upon its horrors. With these means of rational enjoyment awaiting us whenever the cares of business leave our minds unoccupied, it were madness to allow our thoughts to stray to what, with the proper precautions which we set forth in our last issue, may, humanly speaking, be kept at a distance. On the other hand, experience teaches us that the fear of evil hastens the consummation we desire to avoid. On this point we can do no better than quote the words of Father Ricci, who, speaking of the peculiarities of China and the Chinese, thus states a fact in point. "If they (the Chinese) be told that sickness will attack them on such and such a day, then on that day they will certainly be sick, and so overwhelmed by fear that they sometimes even die of it." The weakness of mind which could produce so dire an event is not, we trust, to be found amongst the foreigners who have taken up their abode in the settlements. We are therefore the more confident in recommending the preservation of an equable mind as the best protection against disease.

Summary of the Week.

THE week which has just closed has proved somewhat barren of incident. The temperature has remained low, and the weather, with the exception of occasional heavy showers on two days, clear and almost bracing. We regret to say that cholera (which after a few days prevalence in the settlements had seemingly left us) has again made its appearance. The Spanish Consul, Señor Eusebio de Fortuny has fallen a victim to its ravages, and two or three fatal cases have also occurred on board ships in the harbor. Notwithstanding all the drawbacks which the commencement of the hot season creates, the residents have taken every precaution against ennui. Mr. Black has given two entertainments, the first of which had been announced as his farewell appearance. In order, however, to shew his appreciation of the readiness with which, at serious inconvenience to himself, Mr. Marquis Chisholm took at the piano forte the place rendered vacant by the death of Mr. Phillips, whose removal by cholera we noticed in last Herald, Mr. Black gave another performance for Mr. Chisholm's sole benefit. This came off yesterday evening and was a decided success. The absence of ladies, many of whom are at present rusticating in Japan, had by no means an encouraging effect on the numbers of the audience, but those who were present testified by long and loud applause their approval of the evening's carte. A novelty which deserves notice was a fantasia on Japanese airs composed and played by Mr. Chisholm. Mr. Chisholm has we understand devoted much time and attention to the subject of Japanese Music, and has written an interesting memoir on it. Glancing at Mr. Black's career in Shanghai, we are compelled to say that he has been more successful than any previous caterer for public amusement. His "Evenings at Home" have invariably drawn large houses, and the audience has always comprised the majority of the ladies resident in the settlements. We wish him a successful trip to Hankow, to which port he is about to pay a visit, while at the same time we trust to see him again in Shanghai before he starts on his return home. While on the subject of public amusement we may mention that Professor Gors, whose pyrotechnic displays appear to have made a great impression on the Hongkong folks, has made his appearance in Shanghai, and announces his intention of astonishing both natives and foreigners by his fire works. This, however, does not close the roll of entertainments in prospect. Although the theatrical season has closed, the approach of hot weather warning us against crowded assemblies, a number of gentlemen have formed themselves into a burlesque Company, and purpose to open on Wednesday next with an extravagant burlesque entitled Ill treated Il Trovatore. We have every reason to believe that this company will keep up the reputation already gained by Shanghai amateurs. A notice has been issued announcing the continuation of the match this afternoon.

A rumour of Burgevine's return, which we have now reason to believe was perfectly unfounded, was current in the settlement during the early part of the week, and was so implicitly believed by the native authorities that the Taotai dispatched the S. S. Confucius to look after the whereabouts of the "bugbear." Our readers probably recollect the disastrous fight at Taitsang on the 15th February, 1863, when the Futai's brother distinguished himself by his gullibility and subsequent cowardice. For his conduct upon this and many other occasions on which he displayed the same attributes which brought him into unenviable notoriety at the time of the Taitsang affair, he has been invested with the yellow jacket. The misrepresentations made to the Court of Peking in order to bring about this result must in truth have been stupendous.

From the Front we have no advices of importance. From NANKING we learn that the investing army is gradually drawing up to the wall, and occasionally engages in a skirmish with advanced posts of the insurgents. A few days since, one of Tséng-kuo-fan's brothers, who holds a military command of some importance, attacked a rebel camp on the North side of the city, and after a desperate resistance succeeded in driving the garrison from it, killing and wounding, it is said, four thousand of the enemy.

Our Correspondent at NINGPO sends no news of interest. From the camps outside HOUCHOW we have learned that the Imperialists are still twenty miles from the walls. Active preparations are being carried on, and occasional skirmishes take place, but no operations of importance have been reported. Two Wangs have come over with their followers to the Imperial side, and represent the rebels within the city as disorganised, and divided in opinion.

The news from YOKOHAMA may be comprised in two sentences. The Conqueror arrived on the 28th ulto., and the French Minister left for Europe on the 27th.

PEKING GAZETTE.

(May 21st 1864.)

LI HUNG-CHANG reports the attack on and capture of Chang-chow-foo, the seizure alive of Chen-kuen-shu (the soi-disant Hu-Wang,) and the slaughter of the entire garrison. Such is a summary of the despatch. Chang-chow in the province of Keangsoo was defended by men of desperate character. On the third day of the fourth month (May 8th), Li Hung-chang taking advantage of a severe rain storm, brought his men up and threw a bridge over the city moat. When this was effected a simultaneous attack was made on all sides of the city. On the sixth day of the month (May 11th) Gordon, with Liu Ming-chuan and others, made a breach in the neighborhood of the South gate, and sent the rifles of the bonzes flying about in all directions. An immense number of Rebels were thus killed. The entire army then made a united and daring attack, and obtained possession of the walls. Many thousands of old rebels opposed the ingress of the Imperialists, but Liu Ming-chuan with his followers rushing to the front drove the rebels back step by step through the streets. The dead bodies of the rebels strewed the streets and filled the creeks. Those who still resisted were driven back to the Yamun or the head man who had fortified his position with a stone stockade heavily armed with guns and muskets. Our soldiery surrounded this, and killed a countless number of the enemy. King Sheng-yang with his men forced their way in and captured the Liu Wang (Chén Kuen-shu) and the Tsu Wang (Huang Ho-chin). The defenders of the stockade fled in the utmost confusion. Sixty or seventy thousand, casting away their weapons, surrendered at discretion. The Rebel Fei who called himself T'ien-tsiang (The Heavenly general), thereupon advanced with his men from the little South gate, and engaged us. Chou Shou-chang with his men, rushed forward with one accord and attacked him. The enemy were routed, and many hundreds let themselves down over the wall. Chou Shen-cmuang met them as they descended and completely (lit.) cleaned them out. Those old offenders who hid themselves in different holes and corners within the city were ferreted out and in like manner exterminated. The Tien-tsiang Fei was taken alive. From one o'clock until six the work of slaughter went on, and Chang-chow was taken at last. The operations were indeed most successful. In the affair Li Hung-chang led the soldiers in person, and vigorously cut down whole battalions of the enemy, finally succeeding in capturing this strongly fortified city. His strategic skill is very great, and WE therefore repose the greatest confidence in him, and confer on his descendants to the last generation the hereditary rank of honorary Taotai. The Taotai Li Ho-chang (Li san-ta-jen), the Ti-t'u elect Liu Ming-chuan, the expectant Ti-t'u Kuo Sung-ming, Wang Yung-shen and Liu Sanchi, being each and all pre-eminent for bravery, contempt for death, and a generous emulation, are invested with the yellow jacket as a reward for their merits.

Here follows a long list of mandarins to whom rewards are accorded.

Gordon, the Commander in Chief in the province of Keangsoo, as a leader of soldiers, assisted us in destroying the Rebels, and was continually in action. On this occasion he with (Li Futai) attacked and subdued Changchow in a manner most extraordinary. He is, therefore, promoted to the rank of Ti-t'u Moreover, in accordance with Li Hung-chang's request, WE present him with a banner and a star in order to mark OUR high appreciation of his services. WE await the settlement of the affairs of the "Ever victorious Army," which, when reported to us by Li Hung-chang, will elicit a generous mark of OUR favor. The Ti-tus Li Ai-dong and others (mentioned) are to obtain the first vacancies on the active list of General Officers. Li Hung-chang is directed to enquire carefully as to those who were killed in action, and to report thereupon to US. WE will reward them according to their deserts. A list of appointments is appended. Let the Boards see to it.

H. B. M. CONSULATE,
NAGASAKI.

At H. B. M.'s Consulate, Nagasaki, 31st May, 1864. In the cause in which J. TOWERS, Master of the "Water Lily," is plaintiff, and J. BEDWELL and W. KAGEMANN of Nagasaki are Defendants.

Assault and Battery.

The plaint having been read, and the defendant (T. Bedwell), duly warned that anything he said might be taken as evidence against himself, pleaded not guilty

Plaintiff having been duly sworn stated:—I went into the office of Messrs. Alt & Co. for the purpose of transacting business with Mr. Simpson. As I entered the hall of the office, I saw Mr Kagemann and Mr Bedwell; I said "Good morning, gentlemen," and the first reception that I met was a blow on my right cheek bone by Mr. Kagemann, followed by two others on the right eye and temple. I said, What do you mean by that, sir? He said, I will teach you to call me a damned coolie. I said, I have not; such an expression never escaped my lips. He said, you have; with that Mr. Bedwell closed in upon me, and said he had called at the hotel the other evening to see me. I said, your cuts were duly acknowledged, and I invited you on stairs; with that he struck me also, and treated me in a brutal manner, in company with Mr. Kagemann. They both called me several filthy and disgusting names, and ordered me out of their office, took me by the shoulders, turned me round, and beat me and kicked me out of the door; calling upon Mr. Saunders, who was coming across the compound at the time, to come and help them to turn this dirty dog off the premises. I told them I would lodge a complaint before H. B. M.'s Consul for their conduct, and was hissed and hooted at by them all the way through their premises. I then lodged my complaint at this office

By Defendant.—I swear upon my oath that this statement is true, you did strike me, you did not call me a damned coolie, you called me a dirty dog, and several disgusting names which I do not remember now, during the time that you were beating me. I state upon my oath that you called me a dirty dog. I was not ordered to leave the office until I had been struck several blows. Mr. Saunders was not present at the first part of the proceedings, but he was at the latter part, that is when you were beating me outside the door. A number of Japanese were present.

F. H. SAUNDERS, witness for defendant in the house of Messrs. Alt & Co., being duly sworn, stated as follows:—

To the Court — I know nothing whatever about this case; I met Captain Towers leaving the premises. I heard him come in, that is I recognized his voice, but I did not see him; I went round the premises, and going in at the side door, I met plaintiff coming out; I was about 50 yards from the door when I saw him, but could see the door. He was alone, I heard high words, and I think there was some quarrelling going on in the next office. I could not say whether there was any fighting going on; I heard Mr. Kagemann tell plaintiff to leave the office; I heard no abusive language. I left the office at that time. Mr Bedwell did not speak to me at the time; Captain Towers left the office. Mr Bedwell was standing on the door steps. I was turning round the corner of the house when I met Captain Towers, but when I went towards the door, I saw Mr. Bedwell and Mr. Kagemann there. Mr. Bedwell did not appear to me to be excited at the time. I did not see Mr. Bedwell strike plaintiff.

By Plaintiff —I met you alone coming out of the door: I did not see Mr. Bedwell or Mr Kagemann beating you out of the door. I did not hear Mr. Bedwell call to me to come and assist them to drive this dirty dog off the premises, I was about 50 yards from the door, I do not know how far it is from the office door to those steps, but I should say about 50 yards, I was not within ten yards of that door, I did not have to step aside from the door way to allow them to drive you out.

By Defendant.— I was not present when Captain Towers says you struck him. I did not hear the answer of Captain Towers when told to leave the office. I heard high words. I met Captain Towers outside the house in the yard at the corner of the building. I cannot say what the distance was from the door. I did not hear that you had struck Captain Towers. I was told by some coolies who were present, and by Mr. Kagemann that you did not strike Captain Towers

Finding.—The court finds that the charge of assault is not proved. The case is therefore dismissed.

ABEL A. J. GOWER,

TOWERS v. KAGEMANN.

The plaint having been read, the defendant (Kagemann) duly warned that anything he said might be taken as evidence against himself, stated as follows:—

I plead guilty, but not to the whole charge; that is, I struck plaintiff in self defence, and under provocation. Plaintiff came up to me in a sparring attitude, and I was obliged to defend myself. I have no witnesses. Plaintiff threatened to pull my nose. I was a coolie, me to my face at the time, but I have witnesses that he did say so, namely, Mr. Brown, in the employ of Messrs. Alt & Co., and Mr. Fitzgerald.

By Plaintiff Plaintiff does not admit that he called me a damned coolie. I do not admit to having struck plaintiff without provocation.

Plaintiff having been duly sworn states:—I went into the office of Messrs Alt & Co., for the purpose of transacting business with Mr. Simpson. Mr. Bedwell did not appear to me to be excited at the time. I did not see Mr. Bedwell strike plaintiff.

By Plaintiff —I met you alone coming out of the door: I did not see Mr. Bedwell or Mr Kagemann beating you out of the door. I did not hear Mr. Bedwell call to me to come and assist them to drive this dirty dog off the premises, I was about 50 yards from the door, I do not know how far it is from the office door to those steps, but I should say about 50 yards, I was not within ten yards of that door, I did not have to step aside from the door way to allow them to drive you out.

By Defendant.— I was not present when Captain Towers says you struck him. I did not hear the answer of Captain Towers when told to leave the office. I heard high words. I met Captain Towers outside the house in the yard at the corner of the building. I cannot say what the distance was from the door. I did not hear that you had struck Captain Towers. I was told by some coolies who were present, and by Mr. Kagemann that you did not strike Captain Towers

Finding.—The court finds that the charge of assault is not proved. The case is therefore dismissed.

TOWERS v. KAGEMANN.

The plaint having been read, the defendant (Kagemann) duly warned that anything he said might be taken as evidence against himself, stated as follows:—

I plead guilty, but not to the whole charge; that is, I struck plaintiff in self defence, and under provocation. Plaintiff came up to me in a sparring attitude, and I was obliged to defend myself. I have no witnesses. Plaintiff threatened to pull my nose. I was a coolie, me to my face at the time, but I have witnesses that he did say so, namely, Mr. Brown, in the employ of Messrs. Alt & Co., and Mr. Fitzgerald.

By Plaintiff Plaintiff does not admit that he called me a damned coolie. I do not admit to having struck plaintiff without provocation.

Plaintiff having been duly sworn states:—I went into the office of Messrs Alt & Co., for the purpose of transacting business with Mr. Simpson. As I entered the hall of the office, I saw Mr Kagemann and Mr Bedwell; I said, "Good morning, gentlemen;" and the first reception I met was a blow on my right cheek bone by Mr. Kagemann, followed by two others on the right eye and temple. I said, "What do you mean by that Sir?" He said, I will teach you to call me a damned coolie I said, I have not; such an expression never escaped my lips. He said, you have; with that Mr. Bedwell closed in upon me, and said he had called at the hotel the other evening to see me; I said, your chits were duly acknowledged, and I invited you up stairs; with that he struck me also, and treated me in a brutal manner in company with Mr. Kagemann. They both called me several filthy and disgusting names, and ordered me out of the office, took me by the shoulders, turned me round, and beat me and kicked me out of the door; calling upon Mr. Saunders, who was coming across the compound at the time, to come and help them to turn this dirty dog off the premises. I told them I would lodge a complaint before H. B. M.'s Consul for their conduct, and was hissed and hooted at by them all the way through their premises. I then lodged my complaint at this office

By Defendant.—You did not tell me to go out of the office until you had struck me, I really did say "Good morning, gentlemen" I never said you were a coolie I never said I would pull your nose, I know Mr. Brown, I did not tell Mr Brown I would pull your nose, I did not tell Mr Fitzgerald you were a coolie I received a letter from Newny, Carson & Co., in London, introducing me to the house of Messrs. Alt & Co, and I thought I was coming in to a house of respectability and integrity, but that I had not found it such I stated this to Mr. Fitzgerald Mr Simpson did not tell me never to come into the house again. I did not push down my hat and umbrella in a corner, and advance towards you in a sparring manner.

Mr. FITZGERALD, Witness for defendant, an American citizen, being duly sworn, states: I was not present when the assault was committed I know nothing of the cedant's striking Mr. Towers; I was not present nor near the place. I know nothing directly or indirectly about the assault

By Defendant.—Mr Towers stated in my presence, on board the "Water Lily," that he came here to treat with the head of the house and not with coolies; that Mr. Kagemann was the only person he could see in the office, to speak his business to; cannot tell whether Mr. Towers implied that Mr. Kagemann was a coolie. Do not recollect the date of this conversation; it was before the 25th. I came to your office to answer to a charge brought against me, to the effect that I would thrash you and when I was asked whether any such conversation as the above had taken place in my presence on board the "Water Lily," I said I had heard something of the kind. I believe this was all that took place between us.

By Plaintiff.—I cannot tell with whom you were in conversation when I overheard the words I have now stated. I was engaged in my business at the time. Mr. Brown was present at the time; your chief officer was present, and I think your second officer was there. I believe these are all the Europeans who were present. Mr. Brown was superintending the cargo at the time I heard you make use of the word coolie. I swear on my oath that I heard Captain Towers make use of the word coolie Whether he was repeating it after any one else, I cannot say

By the Court—I did not hear Capt. Towers say that he would pull Mr Kagemann's nose.

CHARLES BROWN, Witness for defendant, in the employ of Messrs Alt & Co., being duly sworn, states;

My name is Charles Brown, I am employed by Messrs Alt & Co. I did not see Mr Kagemann strike Capt. Towers; I was not present at the time Towers said to me once that he had a good notion to pull Mr. Kagemann's nose. I do not remember how long time it was ago; as near as I can tell it was about ten days ago, it was previous to the assault Capt Towers was in a rage, and said that Mr. Kagemann had insulted him by telling him to put stones in his ship, and that he had a good notion to pull his nose. I think he was in earnest when he said it, I was on board the "Water Lily" taking out lead at the time.

By Plaintiff —I state that you did say you would pull Mr Kagemann's nose, and I have already sworn to it. I did not call Mr. Kagemann a damned coolie, I did not say I wished to leave Messrs. Alt & Co's services.

Finding—The Court finds defendant guilty of the charge brought against him by Capt. Towers; and acknowledged by himself. The Court cannot altogether take notice of the provocation given by the plaintiff, as pointed out by defendant;—the first part of which is not proved.

Sentence.—Run in consideration of the indirect provocation proved by witnesses, the Court decides that the defendant pay a fine of only FIFTY dollars ($50) to the Queen with costs

CORRESPONDENCE.

H. B. M.'s CONSULATE
NAGASAKI, 1st June 1864.

No 7.

SIR.—The enclosed is a letter of apology which the British subject Kettle, who assaulted you yesterday, desires me to forward you, and requests you to accept.

Should you think it sufficient—or advisable to propose something further, to meet him in settling the matter amicably—I will then allow the plaint to be withdrawn, this being the first criminal charge brought against him

I am, Sir,
Your Obedient Servant
ABEL A. J. GOWER.

To Captain Towers, British Ship Water Lily
Nagasaki.

NAGASAKI, 1st June 1863.

Captain J. Towers.

SIR.—Having this morning been told I had assaulted you when in company with Mrs Towers, I hereby hasten to express my regret for having done so, and I kindly hope you will inform Mrs. Towers of the contents of this letter. Any manner of means in my power or anything you may suggest I am willing to do, so as to give an ample apology to yourself and Mrs. Towers. I have known you for the past three years and on your arrival at this port our acquaintance was renewed. I even yesterday said that everything said for or against you did not alter my opinion, that you had never done me harm by word or deed, and that I have nothing to say against your character The only cause I can attribute to my unjustifiable attack on your person was my being in a state of intoxication and not knowing what I was doing. I authorize you to publish, if you deem it desirable, this my apology which I hope you may consider to be sufficient, and that you will allow me to call on you personally to request forgiveness for my bad conduct both to you and Mrs. Towers.

I am, Sir,
Your Obedient Servant,
G. T. KETTLE.

EUROPEAN ADVENTURERS IN THE CHINESE SERVICE.

(Blue Book, China, No. 3, 1864.)

Sir F. BRUCE TO EARL RUSSELL,

PEKING, October 13*th*, 1863.

Major-General Brown arrived here early this month to consult with me on the state of affairs at Shanghae. He furnished me with a copy of a letter from Major Gordon, expressing his desire to give up the command of the Chinese troops, and giving it as his opinion that the force, as at present constituted, is likely to prove a source of danger and embarrassment in future. Major Gordon casts by recommending that the plan initiated last year at Pentam should be adhered to, and that, instead of collecting Chinese soldiers under foreign officers, assistance should be rendered to the Government in drilling Chinese officers as well as men, so as to dispense with foreign officers in the field.

My despatches written in the early part of 1862, and those I have sent since the intrigues against Burgevine led to his dismissal, will show my entire concurrence in Major Gordon's views. It was reluctantly, and in deference to the military and naval authorities, that I consented to our assuming the responsibility of defending the thirty miles radius round Shanghae, and I spared no effort to bring about an arrangement of Burgevine's dispute, so as to avoid the necessity of having to place an English officer at the head of the force destined to operate beyond the radius against Soochow. My views as to the course to be pursued in China remain unaltered, and, indeed, are confirmed. If the disorder in this country were confined to the districts in which the Taeping insurgents are in arms, and if their defeat would restore tranquillity, it might be argued that any course of proceeding, likely to attain that end, would be sufficient, and that it would not be of much importance whether the Government reformed its military system or not. But such, unfortunately, is not the case. The Taeping insurrection has its root in, and derives its force from, the anarchical elements existing in many of the provinces, which the Chinese Government, owing to its defective military organisation, is unable to put down, and there is no ground for anticipating permanent improvement so long as that organisation is not improved. To effect this it is necessary that the central Government should form an Imperial force under its orders, which should be available in all parts of the country, and that it should not rely, as it has hitherto done, on the local militia of each province, which acts independently under its own provincial authority. In no other way does it appear to me that the empire can exist in its present form.

No doubt the employment of foreign officers to lead the Chinese troops in the field would produce the most speedy results. But this course is attended with serious political embarrassments. If the officers are English the jealousies of other foreign powers are excited. The Chinese are urged to place men under other foreign officers to guard against the dangers which may arise should this force become a tool in our hands. A spirit of jealousy is thus fomented among the different nationalities in this country, which may seriously embarrass the friendly relations among foreign Powers, and which may be turned to good account by the Chinese in resisting legitimate demands under Treaties.

On the other hand the employment of adventurers has led to a bad state of things at Shanghae, and eventually has become a means of recruiting the Taeping force, and of introducing a vagabond foreign element into the centre of China. The extravagant monthly sums paid to these men by the local authorities has led to an influx of adventurers from all parts of the world, to desertion of sailors from ships. These men are in quest of a livelihood, and when they find that the Chinese authorities decline to employ them they are easily seduced to join the insurgents. It is very difficult to prevent this, for the Taepings have foreign agents in Shanghae, and the ex-territorial jurisdiction to which alone foreigners are subject, deprives the Chinese Government of the power it would otherwise exercise of putting a stop to this abuse of the Treaty-right of foreigners to reside at the open ports.

The formation by local authorities of troops under foreign officers has rendered far more difficult the task of those who sought to persuade the Prince and his advisers of the necessity of creating an Imperial military and naval force. The provincial high officers are averse to schemes one effect of which will be to subject them more completely to the imperial will; and the Peking Government shrinks from the responsibility which would be entailed upon it were the armed force Imperial and provincial. The former from ambition and cupidity, the latter from timidity and dread of innovation, are in favour of any expedient which will relieve them from the necessity of military re-organisation, and it will, at the same time, place European science and energy at the disposal of a Governor-General. They do not perceive, perhaps, fully the future dangers of such a course, or they trust to accidents and intrigue to provide the means of averting them. The successes of the forces commanded by English and French officers at Shanghae and Ningpo, have thus impeded rather than furthered the cause of improvement. Had these officers been aware of the treatment they would receive from the local officials, and of the intrigues to which they would be exposed, they would not have accepted a position so inconsistent with what is due to their self-respect. No officer could enter with a stronger desire to act with, and to serve the Chinese authorities than Major Gordon, and his equal temper, tact, and ability qualify him admirably for the task he undertook. But the ignorance, jealousy, and arrogance of the Chinese Governor have proved too much, even for him, and had it not been for his regard for the general interest, he would long ere this have thrown up the command.

My colleagues entertain the same opinion as I do of the risk incurred by the collection of these bands of adventurers, and of the impossibility of a foreign officer serving except under a commission issued by the Central Government; and I trust that, by our efforts, we may succeed in establishing a better system for the future, as far the subjects of the leading Treaty Powers are concerned.

NOTICE.

THE JAPAN COMMERCIAL NEWS has a very large circulation, and is, therefore, an excellent advertising medium. The greatest pains are bestowed upon it in order to render it a thoroughly useful Commercial Organ; and both to advertisers and to those who desire information relative to the trade of Japan, and of other passing events in this country. THE JAPAN COMMERCIAL NEWS is indispensable. As the attention of the whole world is now directed towards Japan, and as this paper is eagerly sought for not only in all the ports of Japan and China but also in Europe and America. Advertisers cannot possibly have a better medium for communication with the public than this Commercial Journal offers. The terms for advertising are very moderate.

DISH.

Extract of a Letter from a medical gentleman at Madras to his brother at Worcester, May, 1851.
"Tell Lea and Perrins that their Sauce is highly esteemed in India, and is, in my opinion, the most palatable as well as the most wholesome sauce that is made."

CAUTION.

LEA AND PERRINS'
Beg to caution the public against spurious imitations of their celebrated
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE.

L. & P. have discovered that several of the Foreign Markets have been supplied with SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, the labels closely resembling those of the genuine Sauce, and in one or more instances the name of L. and P. forged.

L. and P. will proceed against any one who may manufacture or vend such imitations, and have instructed their correspondents in the various parts of the world, to advise them of any infringement of their rights.

BENSON'S WATCHES AND CLOCKS.

WATCH AND CLOCK MAKER,

BY SPECIAL APPOINTMENT, TO HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Opinions of the London Press upon Benson's Great Clock and Watches in the Exhibition, 1862.

"As a sample of English clock-work on a large scale, the works of this are probably the finest finished that have ever been seen in this country. No Chronometer could be fitted with more perfect or carefully-adjusted mechanism."—Times, June 21, 1862.

"A triumph of ingenuity."—Telegraph, March 31, 1862.

"A more splendid and exquisitely-finished piece of mechanism we have never seen"—Standard, June 17, 1862

"Some of them are of great beauty; and if the English watch-trade only follow up with the same spirit and success this first attempt to compete with foreigners in decorative watches, there seems to be no reason why we should not get the trade entirely into our own hands."—Times, June 23, 1862.

"Ranged around the base of the clock were the Watches which Mr. Benson exhibited, and which have been universally admired for the beauty and elegance of the designs engraved upon them. The movements are of the finest quality which the art of horology is at present capable of producing. The clock and watches were objects of great attraction, and well repaid the trouble of an inspection."—Illustrated London News, November 8, 1862.

HOMŒOPATHIC Practitioners, and the Medical Profession generally, recommend Cocoa as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of Homœopathy was first introduced into this country, there were to be obtained no preparations of Cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach; the nut was either supplied in its crude state, or so unskilfully manufactured as to obtain little notice.

J. EPPS, of London, Homœopathic chemist, was induced in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to produce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through, as to be acceptable to the delicate stomach, and a most desirable breakfast beverage. For General use

EPPS'S COCOA

Is distinguished as being

INVIGORATING, GRATEFUL, and possessing a most

DELICIOUS AROMA:

And to those qualities it is indebted for the adoption it now obtains as a

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.

Three teaspoonfuls of the Powder in a breakfast cup, filled up with boiling milk or water, stirring meanwhile. Sold in tin lined ¼-lb., ½-lb., and 1-lb. packets.

Each packet is labelled thus:—"J. Epps, Homœopathic Chemist, 112, Great Russell Street; 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle Street. Manufactory—Epps's Steam Cocoa Mills, Euston Road, London.

GABRIEL.

IN EVERY AGE AND NATION A FINE set of teeth had been considered as an essential element of female beauty, and dignified manliness. Which perfect they exert a spell potent as that of Dædus, while all the other beauties and attractions of the human frame combined, cannot atone for the loss of this one. No grace or feature can, however, declare its independence of the others, all are intended to act together and not separately, and to produce a pleasing effect, good teeth, as a part of beauty's mystic enchantment, are at once typical and essential. Left to themselves they spontaneously deteriorate, as if their Parian beauty were too delicate for the wild winds of earthliness. Those who do not strike with nature pay regard to every gift Heaven has bestowed. So long as we do her reverence it is man's native right to be happy. Enjoyment is the universal end and rule, our ordinary and natural condition, pain and disfigurement are but the casualties, the exceptions ever tending to a remoter good—the voice of nature binding us remedy her grievances and respect her laws. In no part of the animal organization will the effects of neglect prove so disastrous as in the economy of the teeth.—From "A Practical Treatise on the Teeth," Messrs. Gabriel, who supply Artificial Teeth on their patented system irrespective of climate or distance, as may be seen by reference to our advertising columns.
